This Chinese New Year, I had a one-night staycation 1) at/in a hotel. A staycation is a combination of the words 'stay' and 'vacation' and it means the time when you stay 2) in your city for a vacation. I had a staycation instead of real vacation, as I usually 3) pack a lot of activities into a vacation and this time I just wanted to 4) chill out / kick back and have some 'me time'.

I was looking forward to taking some time off work to 5) chill out / kick back and relax. Upon arriving at the hotel, I gasped 6) in amazement at the luxuriousness of the lobby. Turning around in circles, I 7) took in the stunning lobby full of gold lamps and velvet armchairs. After checking 8) in at the front desk, I took the lift to my hotel
